

An Adventure into the Future

Peter and Ginger are looking at their picture album. They treasure their pictures from their world travels. They look at a picture from a long-ago trip with their parents to Denver, Colorado. Colorado has a nature-loving culture.

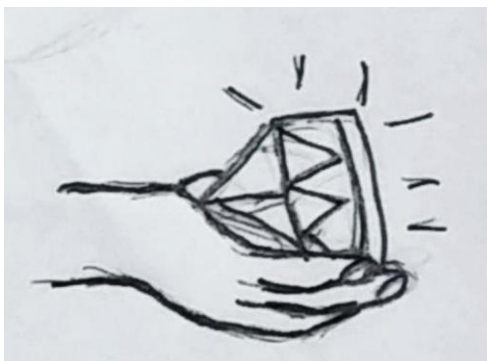

Suddenly, the picture comes to life and they are transferred into it. They find themselves in Denver. However, it is not like the picture in their album. Their mother and father look much older.

Peter and Ginger are surrounded by strange creatures, beautiful nature and flying scooters. The temperature is hotter than when they were there before.

Peter figures out that they have traveled magically to the future. The nature-loving culture in Denver has not changed, but the creatures have, and global warming has raised the temperature.

Ginger sees a giant geode, a treasure in the nature-loving culture of Colorado. She turns to Peter and says, "This is super. Let's find another treasure."

Peter and Ginger hop on a scooter of the future and fly away. They are in search of other kinds of treasures in different cultures around the world.
