

The Muscular Burglar

By: Temimah Pilichowski and Morit Salter

Illustration by: Morit Salter

Some pictures were taken from Google images as well

once on a lunar eclipse, a muscular burglar broke into a wine cellar that smelled of vinegar and sugar.

He just wanted to make a quick dollar, but as he was opening a barrel that was circular,

he suddenly noticed a spectacular caterpillar resting on his shirt collar.
It was really quite peculiar

And it reminded him of something familiar-Something he was ashamed of as a boy Because it didn't make him very popular.

his big love for little insects!

And so, he decided to stop being a vulgar burglar
And not the polar opposite of a sad beggar and instead, be his spectacular insect-loving self

And become an entomologist, who studies insects and bugs-
A fun job that would also provide him a well-earned dollar!

